Founder Thoughts

Dear Well-Wisher,

Our planet is undergoing significant changes as a result of human actions undertaken for our own survival and prosperity. We are seeing the rapid transformation of rural areas into urban areas in the name of human development. Consequently, we are also experiencing many changes in our food, lifestyle, and educational systems. Looking at the way human communities are flourishing across the planet, everything appears to be in order for most people around the world.

Yet when we examine these notions of development, the question comes to mind “Why do we still have problems such as poverty, poor physical and mental health, pollution, climate change, wars, etc.?”

In my view, it is just human ignorance harming the globe. In spite of the technological and scientific improvements occurring all over the world, we are misusing the planet's resources out of greed for our own desires.

This mindset and its consequent actions are a recent phenomenon. Prior to a few decades ago, the majority of individuals led modest lives and prioritized serving the community over their own needs or those of their families. People today live fast-paced lives and don't even have time for their own families or others because of consumerism.

These human actions not only affected our own lives but also, more importantly, had a significant impact on the lives of many animals that make up the planet's ecosystem. Animal welfare has been harmed because the habitats of the animals have been completely polluted and ruined by human activity. In addition to this, humans have cruelly exploited the animals for their own avarice. We are all aware that ending animal agriculture can resolve many of the world's problems, but our ignorance and narrow-mindedness are keeping us from considering it, despite the availability of many alternatives.

Founder Thoughts

The many issues that face our planet are all the fault of us, the human race. Since we are responsible for the problems, we are equally responsible for the solutions. But because of our collective ignorance, we are unable to address the issues we have caused. Humans must take responsibility for the environment and our planet, and adopt solutions-oriented strategies such as ahimsa, veganism, and sustainable living. We may easily and rapidly incorporate these practices into our daily lives, changing ourselves positively in the process. This will result in both individual and social change throughout the globe.

In the end, we are all interdependent. It is important that we all understand the problems we are now facing and work together to find solutions for everyone on our planet, including our animal companions.

Let the change begin with you
Start taking responsibility for homeless animals
Uplift animal welfare for the betterment of everyone
